THE VERDICT.

Was That His Diseas a Was Incurable-His Friends Were Positive of the Fact-A Case of a Life Time Standing.

"Yes, I firmly believed that I was doomed to suffer all my life," said W. H. Brown, son of William Brown, propreter of Brown's Marble Works at 35 W. Jat Senth street, this city. In further speaking of his trouble he said:

W. H. BROWN, 35 W. THIRD SOUTH STREET.

I suffered from severe headaches—which confined me to my bed for days at a time. My nose was continually stopped my, and very raw and sore. I could feet the mucous drop back into my throat bothered me to hawk and spit, gag, and at times nauses.

My throat bothered me the most with a raw and gnawing seasation so that at times it was almost impossible to swallow anything. The fleved thus shroat trouble to be industrible as the physicians whom I had tried readered me only temporary relaif and my friends also told me they believed my case a very difficult one for a physics and to handle and doubted my ever being relieved of such a chronic affection. Now this is the very remean I am making a public statement, as I wish to testify to the morite of Dra. Mansfeld and De Mence's in my case. I was surprised at the rapid disappearance of all my former amanying symptoms. Hefore's began their troutment. I was so weak that I could only work a short time until I would have to sit down and rest. I would feel three all the time. I had no ambition. My limbs would tremble with weakness. Upon rising in the morning I would feel like I had been working all light instead of sleeping, my sleep did not refresh me abit.

For what we are going to say concerns the Welfare of Your Children, Your Own Comfort and Improvement, and the Happiness of your Home. Have you never dreaded the influence on your children of the sensational fiction of the day? We offer you an antimote for that evil.

Do you never, when you have a spare half-hour, long for something good to read? something interesting, but not trashy? something that shall be always ready to your hand, and not force you to spend your precious minutes hunting it up? We offer you a collection of just that kind of literature.

Do you never, in your family, feel the urgant need of some reliable and standard work of reference, to which you can turn with confidence when some discussion arises, or when information is needed on some special subject? We are prepared to fill that went for you, too. . Not to keep you in suspense, we propose to furnish you Ever hear of the Encyclopmdin Britannica? Probably. If not, any literary non or librarian will tell you that it is universally accepted as the standard Encyclopædia in the English language. It ought to be. It was originally published in 1771, and since that time has passed through nice editions, the latest of which was compiled fifteen years ago. In its lifetime of a hundred years and more it has gathered to itself the choicest work of the best writers of each successive generation, sparing no expense to secure from every expert in every department of human knowledge the best he was capable of giving. On the preparation of its various editions it has spent more than three millions sterling, and the cost of the latest or ninth edition alone was not less than ONE MILLION DOLLARS.

But the Encyclopædia Britannics has three defects which defract from its peofulness in an American family. In the first place, part of its latest edition in now fifteen years—or half a generation—behind the age. In the next place, at makes no biographical mention of any persons who were living when it was compiled, no matter how famous they may have been; General Grant, even, is left out. And, lastly, the Encyclopedia Britannica is an English work, compiled for the use of Englishmen in England, and, as is only natural under such circumstances, it treats all subjects of peculiarly English interest exhaustively, and those of purely American interest with far less than the subject warrants. Three pages to an English County and a column or less to an American State is about the proportion.

The Americanized Encyclopædia Britannica

Contains every subject the Encyclopædia Britannica does, with the above defects carefully amended. The entire work has been revised to date, and a series of ninety-six new maps inserted; over 4,000 new biographies have been added, including every person of prominence in the entire world, and the Encyclopedia has been Americanized by reducing the space allotted to psenliarly Euclish subjects and by enisrging that devoted to topics of purely American interest. The result is, we honestly consider, the Best Encyclopædia in the World today, and that is saying a great deal.
